SPORT SPOTS

Triple D's Start Season with Bang!

The Triple D's, Raymond's own fastball team have started out in fine style in their first season by winning their first two games by very comfortable margins. Sunday before last the Taber team went down to defeat by a score of 10-2 and last Sunday, the 1946 Provincial Intermediate Champion team from Cranford took a 12-2 shellacking on their home grounds. The Triple D's seem to have a very good team indeed, as home fans will have a chance to see next Sunday when the Lethbridge Dodgers will arrive to play a double header. The Dodgers have had no chance to prove themselves as yet this year but have always proved to be a fast, tricky team and should put on a good show Sunday.

REPORT FARM IMPROVEMENT LOANS ACT—1946
During 1946, 13,030 farmers obtained loans totalling nearly $10,000,000 under the Farm Improvement Loans Act. A report covering the first year's operation of this act was tabled in Parliament recently by the Minister of Finance, Honourable Abbott.
Loans are made through the 2,100 branches of the chartered banks for the improvement and development of farms and for the improvement of living conditions on farms. The interest rate is 5% simple interest per annum, and loans may be made for periods up to ten years. The legislation aims at assisting particularly the average farmer who in the past has not always been able to obtain bank credit for farm improvement purposes.
Farm implements and farm trucks account for $7,488,347 of loans made during 1946. These loans represent an actual sales volume of approximately $12,500,000. From information available it is reasonable to assume that practically all farm implement sales in Canada requiring financing are now being financed either through loans obtainable under the Farm Improvement Loans Act or through regular bank loans. The result should be a substantial saving to the farmer, not only in the purchase price of his farm implements but also in finance charge

TIDYING UP THE LITTER

(Vancouver Advocate)

For the greater part of the year nature in all its manifestations shames human beings. It is gracious and benignant where we are miniature tempests. It spreads solace where we spread mischief. The trees, the streams, the flowers the hills the birds the soil—they all shame us with the loveliness they create, and the uplift of spirit which they bring. A good share of the litter exposed to view through the disappearance of encroaching snow is man-made, but nature too leaves her substantial discard. Clumps of old leaves, stumps of dead animals, worn-out grass, broken branches, stagnant water are all around. The human family adds its cast offs to make a drab and uninspiring sight even though temporary.

In righteousness, we set forth every spring to tidy up nature's litter. We light cleansing bonfires, we lop and prune and rake. We plough, plant and sow. Everything responds and much would renew itself without our care. After all, nature might get along admirably without us, correcting her own faults, creating her own beauties, rising gloriously from her period of slumber. Perhaps after all we are interlopers in a world which might be happier, better and more beautiful without us.

It must be man's sustaining conceit that has carried him along with such fine opinion of himself, tramping over what he regards as lesser life. It has given him the illusion that he is a finer product and more important than a tree; more beautiful than a flower; stronger than a rock; more moral than a bird; more intelligent than a horse; braver than a lion. He thinks he is quite a fellow, the king of the earth, and that everything should minister to his comfort.

So he goes on every year at this season, chuck-chucking mournfully over the unsightly mess that nature has made, setting forth to correct all the superficial imperfections he sees around him. But never once does he seem to think that the litter in his own soul might stand some tidying up. He never attempts an internal bonfire of corroding hates or useless prejudices that have been accumulating. He does not search for blights and pests within himself. He doesn't even bother much about pure seed for new planting.

He is so busy correcting and cleaning up everything else in the world that he never gets around to cleaning up himself. So from year to year he carries over within himself a debris which hampers his spiritual growth and plugs the free flow of tolerance and understanding. He looks at his shrubs and flowers and all the glowing things about him knowing that they are fulfilling themselves as God intended in bringing beauty to the world. But does he ever wonder what the trees and flowers think of him?

and interest rates previously prevailing for this type of financing.

Included in the total are loans to 1,008 farmers to clear and break an estimated 50,000 acres of new land mostly in the pioneer sections of western Canada. Loans for foundation and breeding stock accounted for 303 loans totalling $199,937.

One of the most important classes of loans is that for the construction alteration and repair of farm buildings including farm dwellings and separate houses for farm help. As the supply of material and labour becomes more adequate, it is expected that loans for these purposes will be greatly expanded.

As shown in the following table, the Act has been particularly successful in the three Prairie Provinces, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta:

	No.	Amount.
Alberta	4,798	$3,388,115
Saskatchewan	4,076	3,140,157
Manitoba	1,928	1,397,553
Ontario	1,443	1,369,371
British Columbia	467	343,706
Quebec	192	146,620
Nova Scotia	76	55,617
N. Brunswick	42	34,541
P.E. Island	8	4,880
Total	13,030	$9,880,565

Britain And World Recovery

A GREAT DEAL HAS BEEN HEARD lately concerning England's difficult financial position and her apparent failure to recover quickly and completely from the effects of the war. It would almost seem that in some reports dealing with this subject, there can be detected a note of satisfaction in seeing the British people contending with what is without doubt one of the most critical periods in the history of their country. However, in spite of the adverse conditions there, many observers are confident that Britain will come through this, as she came through the seemingly hopeless months when she stood alone against the powerful and aggressive forces of Germany and Italy. Her people did not give up then, and it is unlikely that they will give up now.

Contributed To Many Countries

If Britain had not remained firm in the early years of the war, so that she could provide the bases, and contribute her might for the invasion of Europe, it is impossible to imagine how long that continent might have remained under German control. Now, in spite of the difficulties she is experiencing in recovering economically from six years of war, Britain has been making generous financial contributions to world recovery. In the United Kingdom House of Commons Mr. Bevin recently gave figures concerning the contributions and loans made either directly or through U.N.R.R.A., to foreign countries. Contributions to U.N.R.R.A. totalled $620,000,000, while the amount given for pre-U.N.R.R.A., European relief, excluding Germany, was $400,000,000. Loans to France totalled $400,000,000 also, and loans and grants to Greece amounted to $166,000,000. In post-U.N.R.R.A. relief Italy has received $220,000,000 from Britain while over $80,000,000 was sent to Austria in loans and grants.

Large Sums Are Non-Repayable

Other financial contributions made by Britain to post-war world recovery included $240,000,000 in loans and relief to the Netherlands; $120,000,000 to Malta and the same amount to Burma. Hungary had received over $200,000,000 in grants up to March 31st; while grants of $30,000,000 went to Czechoslovakia. In addition to all this, Britain has given financial assistance to Germany amounting to $560,000,000. The total of all the money provided by the United Kingdom for post-war recovery is 2,960 million dollars of which 1,300 million dollars are non-recoverable. Mr. Bevin pointed out that the credits not immediately repayable impose, while they are outstanding, the same strain on Britain's balance of payments as outward grants of similar amounts would impose at a time when there has been some criticism of Britain's present financial position it is well to be reminded of what she has contributed to the cause of freedom and to world economic recovery.

Saskatchewan Hogs Shipped To N.Z.

NOKOMIS, Sask. — Six purebred Duroc Jersey hogs, raised in this central Saskatchewan district, are enjoying an ocean voyage to New Zealand where they will settle on the farm of their new owner.

The four females and two males, total weight 2,430 pounds, and all one year old, were sold by Sam Stolt and Robert Edwards, of this district 60 miles north of Regina to a New Zealand farmer.

The hogs left by rail for Vancouver where they boarded the S.S. Wairuna for a seven-week voyage. They will spend 30 days in quarantine at a New Zealand port before they will start a 450-mile journey of their new home.

More than 1,300 pounds of feed was shipped with the hogs.

HOSPITAL BUILDINGS FOR TWO ALBERTA TOWNS

Vulcan, Alberta, is to have a $75,000 addition to its hospital as a result of a by-law passed recently by the ratepayers. Plans are now being prepared.

A general contract has been awarded for a 34 bed hospital at Lamont, Alberta, at a price of $175,000.

Telephone System For Yellowknife

At Yellowknife, in the North-West Territories, a franchise has been awarded which will result in the immediate formation of the Yellowknife Telephone Company Limited, to eliminate the great inconvenience of "walking" when the flick of a dial will serve the purpose. Scores of business organizations and residents of the booming frontier mining town have pledged financial aid through the purchase of shares in the new company.

The lines will weave a zig-zag pattern from a nerve-centre in Yellowknife over hundreds of miles of almost unmarked terrain, connecting up outlying camps such as Glauque Lake, Salmite-Courageous, Johnston Lake, Indian Lake, Gordon Lake, Pensive, Ross Lake (the site of tantalum mines), and Great Bear Lake where radium and uranium are produced.

All of these telephones will connect up with the "outside" world by radio hook-in, much the same as that employed in ship-to-shore communications on the Great Lakes and elsewhere.

FUNNY And OTHERWISE

Overheard on the Bus: "Are you dining anywhere tonight?"
She (hopefully): "No, I'm not, Bob."

"Gee! You'll be hungry by morning."

A male nurse in an insane asylum noticed a patient with his ear close to the wall, listening intently. The patient held up two fingers as a warning to be very quiet; then beckoned him over and said: "You listen here."

The nurse put his ear to the wall and listened for some time, then turned to the patient and said: "I can't hear anything."

"No," said the patient, "and its been like that all day."

Two married men were discussing their joys and sorrows.

"My wife," said one, "is very poetic. She gets up at sunrise and says 'Lo, the morn!'"

"Huh," said the other, sadly. "Mine says, 'Mow the lawn!'"

When the farmer saw a stranger fishing in his special stream he was very angry but his wrath faded into laughter when he noticed that the angler was using carrot as bait.

Later in the day he went that way again; but he was surprised to see the basket full of fish.

"Bless my soul," he exclaimed. "You never caught all those with the carrot bait, did you?"

"Of course not," was the calm reply, "I caught you with that."

Dinah had been having trouble with an ulcerated tooth for some time before she got up enough courage to see a dentist. The moment he touched her tooth she screamed at the top of her lungs.

"What are you making such a racket for?" demanded the doctor. "Don't you know that I'm a painless dentist?"

"Well, sah," retorted Dinah, "mehhe yo' is painless, but ah isn't."

"I wish I could," sighed the overly stout lady ruefully as she gazed on the sign in a grocery store reading: "Give your fat to Uncle Sam."

"Did the voyage cure you of your insomnia?"

"Absolutely."

"Well, that must be a relief."

"It certainly is. Why, I lie awake half the night thinking how I used to suffer from it."

Babies of the future, says a physician, will talk at a much earlier age. When tomorrow's papa visits the hospital for his first sight of junior, he's likely to be greeted with, "Hello, dad, what's cookin'?"

A very proper and careful old woman was engaging a new gardener.

"Have you a reference from your last place, my man?" she inquired.

"No, mum," replied the applicant. "They wouldn't give me one."

"Why?"

"Oh," answered the man, absent-mindedly, "I hit one of the warders."

"On the day on which my wedding occurred—"

"You'll pardon the correction, but affairs such as marriages, receptions, dinners and things of that sort 'take place'. It is only calamities which 'occur'. You see the distinction?"

"Yes, I see. As I was saying, the day on which my wedding occurred—"

Confusion Arose As Identical Twins Wed

GLENDAL, Cal. — Everyone was confused except honeymooners Mr. and Mrs. Frank Britschgi and Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Britschgi.

The brides were identical twins, and dressed alike. Their husbands were identical twins, and dressed alike. They were married in a double ceremony. They took identical honeymoon suites. They have rented identical apartments in the same building at Oakland.

Everyone was having trouble telling which was which, except the Britschgis.

"We have a second method of identification," said Mrs. Frank Britschgi, or maybe it was Mrs. Arnold Britschgi.

New Locations Staked For 14 Oil Wells

CALGARY. — The promised big-scale oil exploration program in Canada's west gathered impetus when major and independent companies staked locations for 14 wells.

The list of new sites—all of which will get drilling under way this month—includes four in the South Princess area, scene of a promising Madison lime oil discovery in 1946; one at nearby Brooks; three in the Lloydminster-Lone rock area, which is perhaps the west's best bet for a major source of heavy crude; two in the virgin area south of the recent Leduc oil discovery; and one each in Turner Valley, at Baxter Lake and at Egerton.

The program now getting under way is further emphasized by the staking of major and independent companies of details of their 1947 programs.

Used Automobile As Bank For Money

CHILLICOTHE, Mo.—Six days after Omer Skinner bought a second-hand automobile in Kansas City, the salesman dashed in and asked to see the machine.

He opened the trunk compartment, reached behind the cardboard lining and drew out a billfold from the hiding place.

After counting its contents, $2,000 in currency he explained: "That was my bank. I forgot and left the money in the car."

LANDING RIGHTS CLARIFIED BY U.S.-CANADA AGREEMENT

Revision of the agreement between the United States and Canada covering air services over the international boundary has been completed and the details were announced recently by the State Department. Lester B. Pearson, Canadian secretary of state for external affairs, said the new terms are acceptable to Canada.

Western services covered by the agreement include, for United States lines, Fargo-Winnipeg; Great Falls-Lethbridge; Seattle-Vancouver; Seattle-Whitehorse; Fairbanks-Whitehorse. For airlines designated by the Canadian government the routes include Port Arthur-Duluth; Victoria-Seattle; Whitehorse-Fairbanks; Winnipeg-Sault Ste. Marie; North Bay-Toronto.

Boom Days Being Visualized Again At Outlook, Sask.

OUTLOOK, Sask.—The boom hubbly which burst in this central Saskatchewan town at the turn of the century, is being visualized again but the wind has shifted from railways to irrigation.

Situated on the South Saskatchewan River about 40 miles south of Saskatoon, Outlook was once expected to be another Chicago but Saskatoon, old-time residents say, "got there first with the most bridges over the river."

Today, its 700 residents have high hopes with talk of plans for a large dam near the town as the centerpiece in a huge irrigation project by the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Administration.

The original boom started when the Canadian Pacific Railway, pushing across the Dominion at the beginning of the century, reached Outlook. Hundreds of workmen filled the town constructing a bridge across the river. But when the bridge was finished, the population dwindled and ideas of another Chicago faded.

An example of the former high hopes is the fact that taxes on two elevators and a grain buyer's house one mile from the outskirts of the present town, are paid to Outlook for they are officially in the town's limits.

There are also paved sidewalks, laid out then, surrounding still-empty fields. At one time the sidewalks bordered around empty fields while the business section was serviced with board-walks.

The town was re-assessed for the assessment on one piece of property dropped from $1,400 to $250.

A GOOD REASON

An American film producer asked an English friend to look at one of his "society" films to see that everything was all right.

After watching it for a while the Englishman asked, "Why does that man keep his hat on when he's talking to a lady in the drawing-room?" "Sure," said the producer, "he can't take it off—another lady's coming in presently, and he's got to raise his hat to her."

FIND EFFECTIVE TREATMENT FOR LIVER AILMENT

The death rate from cirrhosis of the liver, which has always been high, can be reduced through treatment with crude liver extract, it has been discovered by four New York physicians who treated 30 patients. They reported a survival rate over a two-year period of approximately 77 per cent.

Previous investigators, who observed a comparable number of patients with symptoms of late stages of the disease, reported the survival rate over a similar period to be approximately 45 per cent. when the patients were treated by diet and vitamins; 22 to 25 per cent. among untreated patients, and 65 per cent. for patients treated with the more refined liver extract through injection into the veins. Incidentally, the crude liver extract was given in the same manner.

The physicians involved—Daniel H. Lahby, Robert E. Shank, Henry G. Kinkel and Charles L. Hongland, from the Hospital of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research—reported their findings in the Journal of the American Medical Association. Cirrhosis of the liver is commonly found among heavy alcoholic drinkers.

ers, but it also may occur in total abstainers. In the group treated with crude liver, 21 patients were chronic drinkers.

When the liver becomes cirrhotic, its cells degenerate and are replaced by scar tissue. As a result, the blood vessels in the liver become constricted and the blood stagnates in them. Eventually cirrhosis causes the serum (liquid part of the blood) to ooze out of the swollen veins and to produce swelling of the abdomen. This condition—called ascites—found in 21 patients before treatment was begun, necessitates draining off the liquid from the abdomen. Also, the veins in the esophagus may become dilated and hemorrhage where this food-carrying canal enters the stomach. Seven patients in the group had esophageal hemorrhages.

The crude liver extract was injected into the veins of the patients two or three times a week for six months or longer. No strict supervision of diet was undertaken, but patients were not allowed to drink alcoholic beverages. They were instructed to select foods high in protein and rich in carbohydrate. No foods were prohibited if they were tolerated without distress. In addition, if the patient exhibited a vitamin B deficiency, supplements of the vitamin B group were prescribed only long enough to overcome the deficiency.

Report Of Dangerous Cloud Is Denied

WASHINGTON—A spokesman for the Atomic Energy Commission said that it does not believe any radioactive cloud born of the Bikini atom bomb explosion is circling the earth. "The scare is entirely unwarranted," he said. "We do not believe any atomic cloud is floating around up there."

Earlier, Dr. Irvine Rehman of the University of Southern California denied reports he had said that a dangerous cloud from the Bikini explosion is making its sixth circuit of the earth. Rehman participated in the Bikini test.

John Howard Payne, who wrote "Home Sweet Home", never had a home of his own.

SLEEPY LITTLE TOWN IN BELGIAN CONGO GETS URANIUM BOOST

NEW YORK.—Uranium, key element of the atomic age, has transformed sleepy little Elizabethville in the Belgian Congo into a bustling city of 20,000 with modern sidewalk cafes, the latest model cars and the newest motion pictures, reports a correspondent of the Svenska Dagbladet.

The uranium deposits near Elizabethville, together with those in Canada, are the world's prime source of the newly valuable material, and a whole new way of life has grown up in the area as European whites and African negroes work to produce it.

Nearly 20,000 negroes, some of them imported from the primeval woods of the lower Congo, toil in the uranium, copper, cobalt and tungsten mines which cluster around Elizabethville. For a 10-hour day under the earth they get 20 francs (50 cents) plus meals and quarters.

Europeans, living along the broad, cemented streets of Elizabethville, lead a life of comparative luxury. The climate is mild and pleasant, and at 4,000 feet there are no mosquitoes to remind residents that they are in the heart of Africa. The legendary tom-toms have been replaced by blaring saxophones, and three-score years after Stanley crossed the Congo to be the first white man in the area, modern mines and tall chimneys dot the landscape. Belgian Sabena airliners regularly come and go from a modern airport.

Other and older stand-bys contribute to the wealth of Elizabethville, too. Ivory is still a valuable commodity, and everything from gold to bananas brings income to the area. Approximately 25,000 miles of railroads and 10,000 miles of trafficable waterways exist in the region.

MY WEEK

by R. J. Doachman

I took a taxi-cab on the way home a few days ago and the driver told me about a robbery which had just taken place. It seemed that a very smooth individual had gone into several banks and cashed quite substantial cheques, forgeries of course, and got away with it. "Cheer up," I said as I left him, "look in tomorrow's papers and you will see the end of the story. It dropped out of my mind completely but next morning when I picked up my paper the thief was in the coop. Police in Ottawa do a bit of thinking as well as working and the thinking department was working overtime that day. They picked him up at vars about twenty miles from Ottawa a few hours after the event. He had been rich, in imagination, for an hour or two. How did he think he could get away with it? He intended to go down to the Maritime Provinces and buy a little farm. His chances were about equal to my chance of becoming a millionaire and that—well look for that when it becomes a common sight for crows in spring to turn into human beings. Still the criminal takes that chance. The budget was brought down in Ottawa a short time ago. I wonder how many people in Canada are unaware of it. We are very peculiar about things of this kind. We are pleased with the government when it reduces our taxes. Yes, and we ought to be but in this case it was inevitable that a reduction in taxation should take place. The war is over, part of that great outlay is still with us in our tax bills. We have the returned men to take care of and we must use them right. We have the interest of the debt. Interest rates are lower but total volume of debt is much greater than it was after the last war.

There are, of course, critics. Some claim that the hidden taxes should have been removed, excise taxes, sales tax, luxury taxes, taxes on tobacco, soft drinks, candy bars. The income tax is a far far better way of meeting our obligations, far less restrictive on business. It is a tax which men pay according to their capacity to pay, but it constitutes the thing they see and feel, while the sales tax on a pair of shoes or on any thing else is hidden in the cost of the product and he believes that what he doesn't see, can't be felt.

The Secretary of the American Treasury argues that a reduction in taxes of any kind will be inflationary. There is a measure of truth in this but on the other hand would this be more inflationary than a reduction of the sales tax or of any of the other special taxes. In fact while inflationary pressures continue there is a danger that the gains which should accrue from reductions in the sales tax might not be passed on immediately to the consumer. A reduction in the income tax, does improve the standard of living and to some extent at least tends to prevent pressure for increased wage rates which even today find their expression in a higher cost of living. Business men would have preferred to have seen the immediate abolition of the excess profits tax. This is natural enough but there is a way of escape. They may reduce prices to the extent that they would no longer have excess profits to be taxed. This might be bad for the revenue but decidedly good for the economy in general, perhaps too good for business in general. There may be some of that done before the end of the year.

What of the future? There are only two great nations in the world today which are prosperous. What two are they? Canada and the United States. Those two rank first, there are other smaller countries, Switzerland, Norway, Sweden, New Zealand, perhaps Australia, but Canada and the United States are today the two most prosperous countries in the world.

What of the future? The future depends on adding to the number of prosperous nations. Canada and the United States cannot remain individually prosperous in a world which is in misery.

ROTE SPOKES

News Items From Rotary

What with the boys drifting in and out, coming in late and eating while the rest of us sang "The King" we finally ended up with 19 Rotarians at our weekly get-together at the Second Ward, Monday May 19th.

Before we go further, let us draw to the attention of all Rotas that next Monday the Cardston Club will be in attendance to the tune of about 30 strong. They are going to furnish the program and 1 guess about everything but the food. With the get-up-and-go that the Cardston Club has can be assured we are in for an outstanding treat. Naturally the executive are requesting 100% attendance.

Plans for the Rotary sponsored "Town Clean Up Week" were discussed. The Town Council is giving us excellent support and with the co-operation of the citizens we can make this a worth while undertaking. In this connection yours truly would like to agitate for:

1. Town Garbage disposal By-law.

To make mandatory sanitary disposal of garbage, by use of suitable garbage cans. How we hate to see refuse thrown out in a heap to be scattered by the winds and scavenging dogs. The Town should be able to hire a man and team, reasonably who will collect garbage on specified days in a specified section of town. This service could be carried out on a bi-weekly basis for a nominal charge to the individual of say a dollar a month. This charge would probably be lighter to business houses and the frequency of garbage removal stepped up to say once a week.

2. A Town Zoning By-law.

I don't profess to be an aristocrat but I feel that in certain sections of town such as along main street etc people should not be allowed to build a house of less than a stated value. It is not fair to other property owners who have tied up money in the improved property and it doesn't help the appearance of the town.

"Nuff said!"

We understand that the High school under the direction of Lyman Jacobs are conducting a survey of the Town in connection with Town Improvement and Beautification. A section of this survey shows that an actual count of 11,001 pieces of paper fluttering around on two blocks of mainstreet.

The Rotary Club in order to encourage this survey are offering a first, second and third prize for essays submitted to Mr. Jacobs covering suggestions for Town Improvement and Beautification originating from the present survey.

In view of the rather poor up-bringing of we Rotas and as part of the program, Heber Allen conducted a Quiz in Etiquette based on Emily Post. I am ashamed to report that our batting average on this quiz was inadequate to say the least.

Frank Taylor took up the balance of the time with brief reviews of articles appearing in the May issue of "The Rotarian". We recommend this magazine in your fellow Rotas. It is the official publication of Rotary International as is sent to each paid up member of Rotary free of charge. I warrant that there are not many among us who bother to read it. If we had to buy it we would probably study it from cover to cover but in as much as it is free—well. The high quality of the articles appearing is indicated by the frequency they are reprinted in the Readers Digest.

Looking back over what has proceeded I am inclined to say, "H—, how verbose," so this is your Rote Reporter who says, "Most columns, like conversations, are either too short or much too long"

MORE FOOD

Britain and almost the whole of Europe desperately needs more food. More eggs, bacon, butter, cheese, cream, milk, fruit juices and meats of all kinds. There is but one way that more food can be provided which is for farmers to produce more.

For farmers to be induced to produce more food, however, requires higher prices. It is the only method known which will induce farmers to work longer hours, to be able to hire more labour, to make it possible for farmers to bring additional land into production which for various reasons at the moment is not profitable at present prices, but which land could be brought into production if prices were higher. Certainly the present price of $1.35 for wheat paid to Canadian farmers, basis Port William (1.18 on their farms) and the price for bacon and some other products is certainly not conducive to the highest production. In times of scarcity, therefore, high prices and not low prices are the best friend of people who lack food, for hungry stomachs cannot be fed on mere low prices alone.

More food is actually necessary, and more food can only be produced, by the inducement of higher prices. As the British Government themselves say on page 32 in the White Paper in their famous economic survey for (continued on next page)

HISTORY OF RAYMOND

By ELIZABETH KING

RAYMOND'S BUILDERS
OF 1901, '02, '03

Some one has said: "Every cause has great men to lead, and in every movement there must be those who follow in faith and devotion".

The Knights were the great men who led in the development of Raymond and district, but they could not have accomplished so much and succeeded so well were it not for faithful, devoted followers.

Many came, remained for a few months and left, their names have not been recorded here. Perhaps, many other names of people who have helped in the building of Raymond have unintentionally been left out. We honor them also. Following is a list of 1901, '02 and '03 builders of Raymond:

Knights, Munns, Lambs, Gibbs, Rolfs, Selmans, Courts, McCarthys, Coopers, Holbrooks, Brimhalls, Fairbanks, Woolleys, L. H. Baker, Joseph Youngs, Starks, Bevans, Hawkins, Powells, Kinsleys, Cooks, Depews, Zofelts, Turners, Jones, Piegrass, Rosen, Kirkhams, Fawns, Paris, Greens, O'Briens, Proberts, Ellisons, Dahls, Powelsons, Shields, Wm. Woods, McLeans, Strimhams, Stevens, Richardsons, Rhodesticks, Conmacks, Tollestrops, Waltons, McKnights, McMullens, Lunds, Rivers, Halls, Holmes, Kings, Redds, Dims, Gordons, Fishers, Kimballs, Picketts, Wasdons, Bankers, Southworths, Smiths, Weavers, Hotts, Zobelis, Jeffreys, Frasers, Galbraiths, Milners, Clarks, Corless, Christensen, Walls, Carters, Romerells, Smellies, Owens, Glovers, Linkous, Chance, Forters, Meeks, Powelsons, Allens, Laves, Aphonds, Kellys, Batts, Mendenhalls, Wests, Withecks, Nilssons, Kennys, Terrys, Rouses, Schmolders, Johnsons, Mehews, Hickens, Stones, Walkers, Salmans, Laycocks, Bowdens, Olsons, Scavilles, Wilcox, B. S. Youngs, Thompsons, Meldrons, Allred, Stronga, Woolleys, Larsons, Bennett, Andersons, Hancock, Palmers, Stevensons, Lingards, Buchlers, Vanvarggoners, Heugies, Higgs, Hobbs, Petersons, Dukes, Budds, Duncombs, Paxmans, Burrs, Hydes, Skourons, Horace Wellins (whom Wellins was named after) Thelmers, Mcleall, Bishops, Elders, Jacobs.

To mention these names is to recall the early days of Raymond. Perhaps less than 1% of the heads of these families are still with us. Many of these first pioneers have moved away, many of them have passed on, after long years of service to their home and country. They builded better than they knew. This part of the land in which we live is a beautiful heritage from them to us.

Let us cherish their memory and rejoice in their great accomplishments. Let those who still remain speaking to us through the pages of the Recorder while they are still with us and those who have gone, let their children pay tribute to them.

THE FIRST FAMILY TO ARRIVE IN RAYMOND THE MUNNS

George Court was atop the M.B. Reeson home nailing shingles on the roof September 2, 1901 when he glanced toward the west to see slowly driving across the prairie, the Geo. C. Munns family. He watched them wending their way toward the east when they made a stop (just west of George Heggies present home) get out of the wagon, glance around to find a suitable spot and then proceeded to unload and set up a tent.

This incident made history as the Munns family was the very first family to set foot on Raymond soil. Up to this time the inhabitants of Raymond were men who were plowing the soil, putting up fences and building homes preparatory to the coming of their families.

Before coming to Raymond the Munns family resided at Lehi Utah. After hearing stories of accounts of the rich soil, the abundance of grass and feed for cattle, the vast prairie land with attractive prices etc., Mr. Munns' head was over with his family and decided he needed more food for his family. He therefore decided to sell his Lehi property and head for Canada. They came overland by wagon and were on the trail for three weeks. As they neared the Canadian border line they began to wonder what their new home land would be like. Were they going to better their condition? Would they be happy in this new land? Like the pioneers of old they were full of faith and courage in the future.

Mr. Munns and his family of the Lehi, mother and three daughters, Mrs. A. L. McMullin who still resides in Raymond, Mrs. Hendricks of Ogden Utah, and Elsie Mrs. M. Thyset of Springville Utah.

They lived in a tent for four months when they moved into their new home which seemed like a mansion after four months of crowded tent life. (The Munns house stands on Paul Redds farm and should be preserved as a relic)

A few days after moving into their new house the Munns drove to Stirling for groceries and supplies. A terrible blizzard came up and they became lost and wandered around until almost daylight, nearly perishing in the cold. There was no fence, no trees, no land marks to guide them which made it very easy for a stranger to lose directions.

The Munns family camped in Magrath about two weeks before coming on to Raymond. Lizzie Munns McMullin relates the following: "I remember coming to Raymond from Magrath for a little celebration the day the townsite was laid and named by Apostle John W. Taylor. Some work was going on where the old Sugar factory used to stand and we went out there and were served a delicious dinner by Mr. H. A. Jones who was the cook. I remember the building of the Ellison grain elevator and the sugar factory, and I still have a sample of the first flour and sugar that came through the mills. Buildings went up fast and little businesses sprang up and soon we were a thriving little village with Church, school etc. Our first church services were held in the Mercantile building with the congregation sitting on nail legs and benches.

After the storms cleared away we had lovely weather until the end of the year and we used to go visiting through the waist high native prairie grass. In those days we were a friendly group of people, always ready to help anyone in need. We could expect frost almost any month in the year, but since then the climate has moderated until we can raise most vegetables and many kinds of fruit, and the prairie blossoms as in the case. My father moved away because of my mother's health and died December 13, 1942 at Salt Lake City. I married A.L. McMullin Sept. 27, 1901 and we have lived here ever since and have done what we could to build up the community."

(To be continued next week.)

The attitude of "serves the other fellow right" serves no man well. "Standing off" is not a sign of goodness.

More heartache would save many headaches and keep us from being a pain in the neck.

1947: "There is no place for industrial arrangements which restrict production, prices or employment". When we think of prices in terms of money we must keep in our mind, too, the decline that has taken place in the value of money. When one speaks, for instance, of dollar wheat, this actually means wheat that would have been 79 cents only in 1939 and 61 cents only in 1914. The devaluation, therefore, that has occurred in the value of money must be kept in mind when thinking of prices.

Search for
E. B. Bottles

Franksters Responsible,
Say Authorities.

Crude signs reading "Empties was Here" which are mysteriously appearing in basement corners and wall closets of homes all over Alberta are hindering authorities in their search for E. B. Bottles. Franksters are believed responsible.

Authorities at Deliveries Limited who are conducting the search for E. B. Bottles, alias "Empties" who escaped from work in the brewing industry said that such tactics only tend to lull citizens into relaxing their lookout for the fugitive. They stated that "Empties" may return to hiding in basement corners and closets which have recently been cleaned, in the belief that a search of these areas will not be repeated.

The present difficulty in supplying bottled brewery products was cited as evidence that "Empties" must be brought to justice and put back on the job at once.

Deliveries Limited are offering a reward of 20 cents per dozen for the return of the fugitive. Should Bottles be captured in rural districts, freight agents have been authorized to take the culprit into custody and arrange transportation to the nearest Deliveries Limited depot, without charge to the person or persons apprehending the fugitive. Bottles may also be turned over directly to Deliveries Limited depots at Calgary, Edmonton, Camrose, Lethbridge, Medicine Hat, Drumheller, McEwen, Blairmore or Banff.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

Minerva And The Bellerina

By ELAINE FRANCIS

AS a baby-sitter she certainly got around, Minerva reflected ringling the bell of the imposing LaBon home. All types of doors had opened for her in the past few months, due to the shortage of servants, but none more interesting than this one.

"Come in, my dear Miller," Tanya LaBon cried. "You're just in time to watch me rehearse."

Minerva gaped. Not at the "Miller" which Mrs. LaBon always called her in continental fashion, but at Tanya's exotic beauty. On previous occasions she had been conservatively dressed but today her dark hair was smooth and gathered in a large bun at the nape of her neck and a minute ballet costume revealed her perfect figure.

Chattering rapidly, for the former ballerina was always friendly, always informal, Tanya led the way through the spacious drawing room to the equally large sunroom stripped of all its furnishings except the radio-phonograph. This she snapped on and began to dance. Although Minerva had never attended a ballet in her life, she knew this was magnificent. Her thin body relaxed to the aching, haunting loveliness, and when it ended she sat silent, bemused.

"Miller, you like it?" Tanya inquired. "So does Billy Dunn. He was my agent before the war and tomorrow night he brings movie scouts and big shots to our show. You know about the benefit, yes?"

"A person would have to be deaf, dumb, and blind not to," Minerva replied. For the Woman's Club sponsoring the Revue had plastered the town with publicity about the Broadway stars and home talent who would cooperate to raise money for the Food for Europe drive.

"A plush, lush affair, they call it," Tanya giggled. "But it is luck for me. All those years when Don, my husband, was at war, I could not dance. I had to work for victory. But now Don does not mind that I became a glamor puss and go to Hollywood. He says to spread the wings before it is too late. Ah, Bonnie..." She swooped over to the door and kissed her daughter.

Suddenly it seemed to Minerva that this thirteen-year-old was Tanya's child. The contrast was painful. Bonnie's mudblonde hair, the braces on her teeth, the dainty frock accentuating adolescent bulges... And her face was sullen and dull. What was wrong? Where was the smile that usually transformed her appearance, showing the promise of what was to come?

Minerva learned the answer. People always confided in Minerva, once they had pierced her shabby exterior, and Bonnie was no exception. "Mother is gorgeous, isn't she?" she asked wistfully. "A cinema clench, her agent says."

Minerva's movie going had been limited, but she agreed heartily.

"It's selfish," Bonnie cried. "But I wish she'd stop. I loved our life just as it was—now everything is spoiled. Mother gets younger every day and I feel more like a Mack truck..."

Minerva patted the child's head. "You'll get over that," she said consolingly. "We all have our off days." "Fat chance! The dancing teacher told me today she didn't see how I could be so awkward with such a graceful mother and two of the boys laughed."

Minerva made the first uncharitable remark of her life. "That was a wicked thing for her to say. Wicked! But tell your mother how you feel and..."

"No," Bonnie said flatly, wiping away her tears. "I'm sorry I mentioned it. Skip it, goodnight."

Minerva could not sleep that night, thinking of Bonnie's unhappiness. At this particular stage she was apt to be permanently affected by her mother's fame. Previously, she had been adaptable. A few more years and she would be self-reliant. But right now... If only she could help the child. There was one way, tomorrow... She tried hard to dismiss the idea. Tanya would despise her and it would be dangerous to have the prominent Mrs. LaBon as an enemy. Minerva shivered, picturing her livelihood ended, her return to poverty.

Nevertheless, at four the following afternoon, the plan was in motion. Having sent Bonnie to the summer house for her supposedly mislaid spectacles Minerva searched for the phone. Strangely, it seemed to have moved, but she found it just as Tanya returned from the beauty parlor. Picking up the receiver, Minerva said loudly, "I feel sorry for Bonnie, claims it will ruin her life if Tanya makes a hit. Sure, she's hipped on Hollywood. Oh, 'bye.'"

As Tanya stood and stared at her, Minerva did not have to act ashamed. She actually felt it. "Didn't hear you," she explained feebly. "My, your hair is pretty."

"Miller, how could you discuss our affairs this gossip way? I am disappointed," Tanya said coldly.

Minerva's blood chilled. This time she had gone too far with her meddling. Should she explain? Squaring her shoulders, she banished the temptation and said stoutly, "Bonnie told me..."

"I do not believe a scandal talker," Tanya interrupted bitterly. "Here is a ticket I got for you." She dropped the pasteboard and walked out of the room.

Minerva was miserable. What had she accomplished? Nothing except to brand herself a garrulous, untrustworthy old soul.

That night she crept into her sent at the Civic Auditorium and watched the curtain rise on Tanya, a whirl of blue. But her performance was so mediocre that Minerva, recalling yesterday's fiery dance, was amazed. At the finish Tanya bowed, smiling straight at the box where her husband and Bonnie sat with three disgruntled gentlemen. The talent scouts, no doubt. And then Minerva understood that Tanya had deliberately danced that way, sacrificing her career for her daughter's sake. But what or who had changed the ballerina's mind?

During the intermission, Bonnie came running to Minerva. "I have a message from mother. She said to tell you the telephone is portable and wasn't plugged in, but thanks anyway. Whatever that means. And Minerva, mom doesn't want to be a star. Isn't that super!"

Looking at the radiant young face, Minerva agreed completely, while smiling inwardly at her own lucky stupidity. Phones that plug in!

New Radar Device Has Been Tested

The Detroit Free Press says the highly versatile Howard Hughes has demonstrated a radar device which gives hope that one of aviation's greatest hazards—that of collision—may be eliminated.

Press accounts do not make clear how much Hughes had to do, personally, with the development of the instrument. However, his prestige in flying circles makes his enthusiastic sponsorship of it important.

From the air lines' standpoint, one of the detector's most attractive assets is its light weight—only 16 pounds. If it works in service as well as in test, air travel will be infinitely safer.

The centuries old implement of harvest, a sickle still cuts much of the wheat grown in Central China.

Expressive Word Is Seldom Used

A speaker in Toronto the other day remarked that one seldom heard the word "merry" and its associates used nowadays, and he regretted it because it is so expressive.

Come to think of it, the word is not often used. Perhaps it is because there isn't much to be merry about with the world in the mess that it is.

In the older books and in the dialogue of Shakespeare's characters and of other early writers it occurs frequently.

Burton, in his Anatomy of Melancholy, bade men go merrily to Heaven, and asserted that wise men were merry. In Proverbs, it is said that a merry heart doeth good like medicine. A popular song of the gay nineties had it that a merry heart is a purse well lined. Even the lugubrious Hamlet said: "What should a man do, but be merry," and among several other adjectives to be merry, Florizel, in The Winter's Tale, says, "let's be red with mirth."

It used to be commonly said that a man was as merry as a grig, or cricket, which is a misquotation for as merry as a Greek, and a clownish fellow used to be called a "Merry Andrew", the description coming from Andrew Borde, physician to King Henry VIII in the days of "Merrie England".—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

RESEARCH INSTITUTE PLAN EXPLOSION METHOD IN FLOUR MANUFACTURE

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—The Midwest Research Institute is planning a $100,000 pilot plant to make commercial scale tests of its new process for exploding cereal grains into flour by compressed air.

Harold Vagthorg, president of the organization, called the process one which has "possibilities of revolutionizing the milling industry to the advantage of both the miller and the consumer."

Vagthorg said the significance of the experiments was in the fact that preferential separation of the component parts of the grain thus can be obtained. He said wheat flour can be made free of the germ, something exceedingly difficult under conventional milling standards.

"We have reached the stage," he said, "where we shall need a large-scale pilot plant at the institute to make commercial tests. We are proposing to invest $50,000 in equipment and $50,000 in personnel and supplies to carry out the tests for two years."

He said plans had been drawn for a continuous process plant, with a series of explosive dissociators for cycloning and segregation processes between each so that the finished product will be flour and by-products, or merely separated parts of the grain. Wheat, oats, sorghums and other cereal grains will be used.

C. J. Patterson, a trustee of the institute and a baking company executive, called the explosion method a process of vast possibilities.

"We don't know yet it's commercial feasibility in the final making of flour," he said. "It should be able to simplify many of the stages in milling and cereal processing. We do know that it will do things never done before and it may bring lower costs in some phases of milling."

Fails To Eat 12 Cakes, Loses Bet

CAPE TOWN.—Stanley Brown lost a $20-bet because he could eat only 2 1/4 pounds of cake at a sitting.

Brown fancied some 2 1/4-pound cakes he saw in a Cape Town hotel and exclaimed, "Boy I could eat a dozen of those!" The hotel manager heard the boast, proposed the bet, and pocketed his winnings when Brown threw in the sponge after eating 10 1/2 cakes.

Britain's Food Outlook Better

DUNDEE.—John Strachey, food minister, said there was "real hope" of ending bread rationing in Britain if this year's world wheat harvests are good.

Britain imposed a basic ration of nine ounces of bread daily for adults, with less for children and more for manual workers, last July.

Strachey, speaking at a press conference, also said there was "some prospect" that world food prices would begin to decline next fall.

QUESTION OF STATEHOOD FOR ALASKA DEFERRED

WASHINGTON.—Statehood for Alaska was postponed at least a year, to permit a House of Representatives public lands sub-committee to investigate conditions in the territory.

The action was the reverse of that taken when the committee voted without leaving their chairs to approve statehood for Hawaii. That proposal now is awaiting action of the House rules committee.

When the Alaska vote was taken only one member, Representative A. L. Miller (Rep. Neb.) voted to approve immediate statehood for the territory. He is the only man of the sub-committee who has visited Alaska.

Delegate Edward Bartlett (Dem.-Alaska) said he did not believe the sub-committee's action had actually delayed statehood.

"Even if our bill had been approved," he said, "it would have been almost impossible, so late in the session, to have expected passage in both Houses, or even in one of them until next session."

Three-Months-Old Child Can Stand Alone

CHICAGO.—Look, no hands! Mrs. Adeline Dubish amazed members of her family when as a child of three months it was discovered that she could stand alone.

Now she has a son, Peter, born Feb. 7, who was able to stand at least a week before he was three months old.
